"Radical time changes can be handled in a variety of ways to give movement to a story. Some films will use a frame. Perhaps the adult character is telling the story, and the body of the film is a flashback. Although this is sometimes overused, it does have the advantage of introducing the main character as an adult, and of adding a reflective tone to the film. It can give structure by framing the film as a whole, or even by bringing in the character to interject and remind us of his or her presence throughout the film. This frame can be structured both to enclose sections of a script and to give movement to the story.

create three acts

Act One

Act Two

Act Three

Act One refers to the material that sets up your story. It introduces the characters. It establishes the problem, issue, need or goal. It gives you the information you need to know before you start developing the story.

Act Two develops the story. It develops relationships. It shows the actions that the character is willing to do to resolve the problem or reach the goal. It sets up the obstacles that create problems for the character.

Act three payoff the story, it resolves it. Hopefully there's a dramatic build leading to a climax or a "big finish" that makes the ending exciting, intense, and/or emotionally ~~also~~ satisfying. This act intensifies the conflict. Raises the stakes. Leads to the inevitable conclusion.

72 108

Act one runs 25 → 35 minutes

Act Two will usually be about sixty pages long, or one hour.

Act Three is the usually the most exciting, the fastest-paced, and most intense, it will generally be between ~~20-30 minutes~~ 20 → 30 minutes long.

Act One: Sets Up the Situation

Act Two: Develops the Situation and Relationships

Act Three: Shows consequences of Decisions Made in Act Two —

The Climax

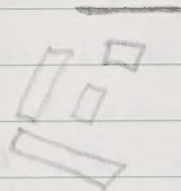

The Catalyst → what scenes establish the problem? How does the problem get set up? The scene where this occurs — the catalyst — is the scene that starts your story, or the first event that begins the story line.

Generally the catalyst will be placed within the first ten or fifteen pages of the screenplay. Until it occurs we won't what the story is about.

Transition Scenes → what scene moves the story from Act 1 to Act 2, and from Act 2 to Act Three?

Vegetable Broth
green onion
white onion
green pepper
green chilis
cumin

Brennans → New Orleans

Grandparents, ~~over~~ female cousin getting ready to go to the powwow. All are dancers although the female doesn't always dance. The car is being loaded with dance outfits. Outside underneath the shade a drum group is singing, practicing for the powwow. They are relatives, uncles, cousins. The male cousin is drumming with the group. He has a short military haircut. Food is being packed up. The tents are also packed.

A car is driving up, ~~idiot in the~~ creating dust. In the car are the female cousin's boyfriend and the male cousin's girlfriend.

They shake the grandparents' hands. The boyfriend gives the female cousin a quick kiss, touching lips lightly when the grandparents go back into the house to get more things.

~~They go over to the car~~

The male cousin has come over and there is some awkwardness with between him and his girlfriend.

The grandmother tells the female and male cousins not to be late for the honoring song for him. Grandparents' drum group drive off in two cars.

The boyfriend asks Reno about his when he leaves for Vietnam.

Scenes of family eating during dinner break

later in the evening following grand entry, all the cousins are together, ~~Reno~~ Austin is very restless, Reno tries to encourage him to stay, suggests they get a sixpack to go to the river, sit and talk. Austin hesitates says no I have to go.

Next scene Austin is in a bar CW music is playing. Group of WG's start ~~get~~ harassing him. He's wear his army clothes w/o jacket. They come over, buy him a beer acting friendly. They (WGs) look at one another. Tell Austin they know of a party, why doesn't he come along. Drinking, joking. They turn off on a gravel country road.

They kill him by running him down with car after he is shot, he is dying. They leave. His raining lightning thunder

Next scene early morning a white rancher comes along

→ scene of Reno sitting up, from a sleep his girlfriend next to him he hears traditional Indian singing dogs are barking. He lies back, listening quietly close up of his face.

Bad music Reno is playing is on their radio.

While he is being murdered there are scenes of him in Vietnam

The rancher pulls over, you can see a crumpled form in the road. He slowly gets out walks over then say something in surprise. Checks him for a pulse. He jumps in the pick up.

Next scene ~~the~~ There's trial police, find his wallet, one of the police recognizes him. ~~Cops~~ ~~Drives~~ He volunteers to drive over to Aunt + Uncle.

The mother wants to see Austin. They can't stop her. She's screaming hysterically. The father holds her, looking away.

The female cousin drives to Reno's girlfriend's house w/ her boyfriend. Reno comes to the door smiling then immediately changes when he sees their looks. Female cousin says it's Austin. Reno starts shaking.

The next scene is the ~~funeral~~ arrival of the body for the wake.

Very quiet. Cars are waiting on top of the hill. As they pass over the bridge. An ~~old~~ older man begins singing.

The body/casket is in the community etc. Reno goes to the casket, starts yelling out, crying tell Austin it's time to get home to go home. His father takes him away outside the female cousin is sitting in a pickup.

Next scene she's in ~~there~~ Albuquerque driving to the airport to pick up Reno who has just gotten out of the military and Vietnam. By now she is a lesbian, has a group of "eccentric, intense Indian artists plus straight friends."

She's moving to San Francisco, Reno has come to spend some time at her plans to attend school in the Bay Area.

→ Next scene tops are being blown guns shot, later in the afternoon all 4, are driving to the river, drinking beer, quiet while Solitary Man by Neil Diamond is ~~heard~~ playing.

1. Feel for

I was able to spend time with Ron during his I ~~enjoyed the visits~~ last months. ~~off~~ We used to sit in his living room looking out onto the garden.
We talked about a lot of different things and sometimes we just sat in silence. I told him that he didn't need to entertain me ~~wasn't like that~~

Sometimes Ken Jones came with me and they did their boy gossip thing. One afternoon when Ken and I were with Ron, we all took our pain medication at the same time. Ken was recovering from hip surgery and I was having pain from my chronic fatigue condition.

There it was a very bittersweet moment as we each took over the same pain our percocet.

~~Ken and I were both~~ and smiled
The three of us looked at each other and it felt like we were sharing a special secret known only to us.

On Saturdays, we watched the cooking shows on Channel 9. We'd laugh at our cooking mistakes. I'll always remember Ron's peculiar interpretation of other people's recipes, his many pounds of baked rice which had many pounds of sliced potatoes ^{hidden} inside, his baked chicken, the chicken he purchased from the Price Club and it was guaranteed that you definitely chewed the bites the recommended number of times one is supposed to chew food, the tortilla egg breakfast dish that he made on one of our weekends at Bodega Bay that caused Ken to ask Ron, ~~where are~~ Did you forget the eggs? ~~as we ate mostly tortilla chips.~~ The dish that Ron cooked that I really liked was his carrot soup which I told him this summer. Linda and I came to dinner one day and Ron had cooked the carrot soup. He was ~~sent~~ out of the hospital less than a month. ~~but~~ The soup didn't have the fullness of when he cooked
